06.12.2023

In the June 12th New Jersey Law Journal article, “New Jersey Top 40: Litigation, Practice Diversity Set Firms Up for Growth,” Archer president, Christopher Gibson, discussed Archer’s 2022 7% revenue increase, which was the firm’s second-straight year of healthy gains. Saying it “really wasn’t one thing responsible for the growth,” Chris referred to the firm “reaping the benefits of having a diversity of practices.” Talking more about it with NJLJ’s David Gialanella, Chris said that “diversity manifested in double-digit revenue gains in business litigation, environmental litigation and land use. Health care law and elder law also were strong.” Asked about sustained growth, Chris said “law firms must be willing to take calculated risks, noting Archer’s move into Houston last year.”
